CSC-192 Seminar #8: Corporate Culture & Career Success Factors

Speaker: Heather Giovanni, VP of Technology, HPE Storage Div.

Q1: What are the options on Career Opportunities available to New Grads (from Sac State)?

New Grads can work in tech companies, government jobs, or non-technical companies that need some kind of tech support. Some jobs are in software development, testing, or project planning. The speaker also said state jobs in Sacramento are a big option and many grads from Sac State work there.

Q2: What do Employers look for in New Grads?

The speaker mentioned that Employers look for internships or school projects that show you can work with others. If you don't have work experience, showing volunteer work or teamwork from school would be fine. They also want to see if you are reliable, can solve problems, and learn quickly.

Q3: List 3 Pros & Cons of 'Job Hopping' vs 'Climbing the Ladder' in a Company?

The pros of job hopping are: Trying different skills and tech areas, learning fast changing roles, and can get better pay sometimes. In the other hand, cons are people may think you are not loyal, you might not go deep in any one thing, and harder to build strong ties at work. The pros of Climbing the ladder can move up inside the company, it is easier to get new roles if they know you and get to know the culture and people well. The cons are you might get stuck if no new role, might get bored doing same type of work, and pay rises may be slower sometimes.

Q4: The best way to show competence in the Company you work for?

Asking smart questions, learning fast and writing clean code are really important to show competence. Being active in code reviews, that's where people see if you know your stuff. Using tools like git and company's standard tools are good ways. In addition, not being afraid to ask for help is also important. Blending in with how others work, but also show you are thinking.

Q5: Benefits of Remote vs. On-site work environment from an employer's perspective?

Benefits of Remote are helps people who need quite time to think deeply about problem to solve. Introverts who prefer more alone time can feel more relaxed. People may feel more balanced and focused. Benefits of On-site are it is face-to-face talk, which is faster. It is easier to share ideas quickly because of fast communication benefit. It also helps build team bonds.

Q6: Benefits of State vs. Corporate Jobs according to the Speaker?

State jobs contain steady hours, which helps people for better work-life balance. It is also important to note that strong retirement benefits, especially healthcare coverages. It is comparatively less stress and less overtime work. Corporate jobs on the other hand, benefits employees as higher pay. Because of the fast-paced nature of the corporate environment, there will be more learning. It also gives more chances to move up or switch roles as employees' skills set.
